

Offshore Development

White Papers Outsourcing Software Development Outsourcing can be a good way of coping with new business. It can help businesses save money on costs incurred daily for hiring several people to do the same tasks. Through the internet, companies can easily get their work done online contractors sitting anywhere across the globe. This reduces the expenditure of the company and can improve the quality of the work done. Due to these advances the human resources have become more fluid and consistent. The world has become a place where outsource software development can be accessed by almost all people. Today people solve problems which are not even heard before by anyone. This is the advancement in technology. Today the fastest solutions the companies have is outsourcing software development with Offshore software development. It has multifarious benefits. These are:

- Costs are significantly reduced.
- The company is assured that the software needs will be satisfied by the professionals.
- And most importantly, the services become very easy to locate with help of big network of businesses.

Resolution of software development problems The outsourcing of software development is the easiest and most convenient way for some companies in the present time. In earlier times people had to invest a lot of money and time in training people in resolving software development problems. But that time has gone in some sectors. Today, companies have excellent solutions to all such problems at the tip of their fingers. Professionals are available all over the world which save the company's money as well as time. Prices can always be adjusted through the mutual concept of both the parties. It is the most cheap and efficient way that a company can choose. Moreover it is the best choice that any company can make. Outsourcing database development involves people who belong to different cultures, different nationalities. They may speak different languages which may become a hindrance in communication. This problem of communication can be solved by arbitration. It is the fortitude of a dispute by an adjudicator who is impartial. Both the parties agree on his term and conditions. This is the best method through which offshore database development can be enhanced. The Benefits of Offshoring ‐ Without the Risks! One of Integrous's core services is the provision of highly skilled resource to software/web development companies and to internal Information Technology functions - providing additional capacity and resource as and when they require.

Integrous offers the best of both worlds - UK based project managers coupled with financial benefits of utilising off-shore resource. Our dedicated Offshore Development Division save our clients time and money ‐ typically savings of between 30% and 40% on development or project costs. For Free Advice on Offshore Development Resources or any other products or services, contact our team of experts via enquiries@integrous.co.uk or call us on 08456 581 811. Integrous are specialists in Mobile Workforce Automation, PDA Application Development and Offshore Software Development.